A LORD AND LADY HERE

Notable Party Was
On Board the Aorangi.

GOVERNOR RETURNING HOME

Lord and Lady Lamington See Honolulu and Say Very Nice Things About It.

Among the Aorangi's distinguished passengers from the Colonies to the Mainland were Lord and Lady Lamington, who go via the Canadian route across the continent, and thence to their home at Lamington, Scotland.

The Right Hon. Lord Lamington, P.
C., G. C. M. G., has been the chief executive of Queensland for the past five years, and during the residence of himself and Lady Lamington in Australia, both have won wide popularity.
Their departure from Queensland was attended by splendid ovations, and the week prior to the sailing of the Aorangi was a series of brilliant social functions, receptions, banquets, etc., given by their numerous friends of Queensland's elite. His excellency granted an interview to a representative of the Advertiser last evening.

"I am very much pleased with your city," said he. "Lady Lamington and myself have been driving this afternoon. We drove up the Pali road and back again over the road encircling the picturesque crater—the Punchbowl, I believe you call it. We also drove out to Waikiki and dined at the splendid hotel there. Lady Lamington, who is a poor sailor, is delighted with her outing, and we are both of one opinion as to the beauty of your city. The driveways are magnificent and beautifully kept. Honolulu seems to us to be a luxuriant garden spot, and the few hours we have spent here will linger long as a pleasant memory. We witnessed the sunset from Waikiki, and I have seldom seen anything more beautiful. Lady Lamington is particularly impressed with the grandeur of the mountains. The coloring and absurdity of outline render them beautiful beyond description."

When asked about affairs Australian his excellency said that the new form of government, according to his view, is an excellent thing for the Colonies.
"Of course," said he, "the formation of a federation of this kind will require a great deal of tact and caution, and it will take some time, just as the joining of your states into one great union has, but like the United States, also, I am sure it will be a success.
For the common purposes of defense, customs and duty, convenience, and general centralization of law and power, the benefit of the federation is obvious, and there are many details, too numerous to touch upon, that confirm the wisdom of the step. I predict a bright future for Federated Australia."

His lordship is noted for his wit and eloquence as a speaker, and many columns of the Queensland papers of the week previous to the Aorangi's sailing are devoted to the taking addresses made by him at various banquets and receptions given in his honor. Lady Lamington, at a final reception at the Government House, was presented by Lady Griffith, on behalf of a committee, with a magnificent set of toilet articles, ornately mounted in plain, solid gold, an illuminated address accompanying the same, the scroll expressing the love and esteem of the women of the state for her excellency and their regrets at her departure.
Lord and Lady Lamington are accompanied by their two children, with nurse, maid and valet.

TURNED UP A CHE FA GAME

Detective David Kaapa Makes a Big Haul of Celestials.

David Kaapa, the detective, while nosing around in Palama in quest of suspicious characters, stumbled onto a gaming house belonging to Chinese, on the edge of a rice field. Kaapa, with the assistance of a Chinese special officer, made a sudden descent on the house and blocked the doors of one room in which nearly twenty Celestials were busy at playing che fa. One roomful of the gamblers was fortunate in eluding the two officers, leaving the evidences of their game behind. Kaapa locked the doors of the other room and left the special on guard while he went to the nearest telephone to call the patrol wagon. When the wagon was brought to a stop at the entrance to the long, dark alleyway, it seemed that half the Chinatown population gathered around to witness the departure of their countrymen to the station house. Two officers marched the Chinese out to the wagon by twos, and with the gambling material, drove back to the station house, followed by a line of hacks with Chinese on the scene to make a few extra dollars by bailing their countrymen out.

KNEW HIM BETTER.

Mrs. Caller—Surely, you're not jealous of your husband?
Mrs. Caller—Yes, I am. He simply can't keep his eyes off the women.
Mrs. Caller—Oh, yes he can! You should see him sometimes when he has a seat in a crowded street car.
